RIPL 2012

The Religion in Political Life Research Program is based in the Humanities Research Institute at the University of Newcastle. The RIPL program addresses religion’s new visibility in four key areas of political life: democratic authority, radicalism, gender and colonial legacies.

Seminars

22 Aug: Dr. Lu Shaochen, Fudan University, China
“Confucianism and Western Marxism on Authority”

19 Sept: Dr. Holly Randell-Moon, University of Macquarie
“The Secular Contract: The British Monarchy and White Diasporic Sovereignty”

24 Oct: Emer. Prof. Terry Lovat, University of Newcastle
“The Arabic Abraham, Radical Islamism and the Politics of Palestine”

Venue: Auchmuty Library Cultural Collections
Time: Wednesdays 3-4.30pm, All welcome for tea, coffee and nibbles
Contact: Linda.Hutchinson@newcastle.edu.au, +61(0)2492 17915, Executive Officer of the Humanities Research Institute.

Religion in political life research program